INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION REPORT

International Application No.
PCT/US03/19613

V. Reasoned statement under Rule 66.2(a)(ii) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. STATEMENT

| | | |
|-------------------------------|--------------------|-----|
| Novelty (N) | Claims 1-52 | YES |
| | Claims NONE | NO |
| Inventive Step (IS) | Claims 1-52 | YES |
| | Claims NONE | NO |
| Industrial Applicability (IA) | Claims 1-52 | YES |
| | Claims NONE | NO |

2. CITATIONS AND EXPLANATIONS

Claims 1-52 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(2)-(3), because the prior art of record does not teach or fairly suggest a method for determining an abundance of a biomolecule in a biological sample, wherein the method comprises the steps of:

(a) adhering a first biological sample to a first support to create a first matrix comprising one or more biomolecules from said first sample;

(b) adhering a second biological sample to a second support to create a second matrix comprising one or more biomolecules from said second sample;

(c) exposing a library of binding species at least one time to said first matrix to create a first product comprising one or more binding species of said library; and

(d) exposing the first product at least one time to said second matrix to create a second product, wherein a binding species present or absent in said second product is indicative of the abundance of said biomolecule in said first biological sample relative to said second biological sample.

References Smith et al., and Coto et al. teach the general state of the art.

Claims 1-52 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), and thus have industrial applicability because the subject matter claimed can be made or used in industry.
